The big drawing card, which is expected to attract more spliders than anything else, is the address by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, known and liked for his soldiering qualities and his active work in the organization of the American Legion. A veteran of the First division in France, Colonel Roosevelt saw some of the hottest lighting of the war and was, incidentally severely wounded in action.

On this day, the ex-service men will be rained the freedom of the city and the fair grounds. It will be "some farlo" for them. Nothing will be too good for the boys in olive drab and blue, the state fair directors assert.

Registration booths will be established on the grounds, and plans will be made for the rapid registration of all men, so that there will be no delay in this particular. Dr. T. S. Morrison, leader of the 130th field artillery band, is making an effort to get the entire unit here for the fair. The exponses of the musicians will be paid and the band, which made such a hit on the promose of the many is a shirty in concert work.

At the Peoples' pavillion on this date an elaborate program is in the process of being arranged, W. A. Biby announces. Many well known speakers will deliver brief talks, and the best music obtainable will be brought here to that the ex-service men can forget for the time being the trials and tribulations of the past two years.

The big drawing card, which is expected to attract more spidlers than anything else, is the address by Col.
